Table 1 below contains a breakdown of the single most expensive mobile phone in 2016.

Mobile devices are assigned with reference to the officer’s role and required functionality. These fall into two main categories, standard mobile phone for voice and text and smart phones for access to mobile mail services. Details of the number and the make/model of devices currently assigned to Departmental officers can be found in Table 2.

Please note, the information in Table 2 refers to phones issued at HQ offices only. The Department’s Missions abroad manage the provision of mobile services locally with phones and services purchased in the relevant locations. It is the responsibility of this Unit to provide guidance on the devices procured to ensure that they meet requirements for access to the Department’s network.

Mobile devices may be assigned on a short-term or long-term basis. Certificates of Receipt, which detail appropriate use, are issued to and signed by each officer. Extracts from sample Certificates of Receipt are attached below.
