

Transit Visa

Nationals of some states or territorial entities are required to be in possession of an Irish transit visa when arriving at a port of entry in Ireland for the purposes of passing through a port (airport, seaport) in order to travel to another state.

A transit visa does not permit you to enter Ireland for any purpose. It only permits you to transit through Ireland in order to reach your destination in another state.

If the intention is to leave the port at any stage they must apply for a short stay visa in the normal way.

You must have the relevant visa for your country of destination in your passport before applying for an Irish transit visa.
